SUPER SCARVES

HANDCRAFT A SUPER SCARF FOR A VOLUNTEER

Here's your chance to suit up for the action even if you can't play in the big game.

As Indianapolis gets ready to host Super Bowl XLVI, there's a way you can create a scarf to be a part of the fun and make your mark on the game. Super Scarves is a program launched by the 2012 Indianapolis Super Bowl Host Committee (a not-for-profit) to share warmth and the Super Bowl experience.

The Host Committee wants to give those who cannot physically volunteer in February 2012 a chance to be involved with the Super Bowl. We are looking for individuals who are interested in making a warm thank you for the volunteers who will be participating in the 2012 Super Bowl. These beautiful handcrafted scarves will keep them warm in the cool winter weather. They will also provide a special connection between the volunteers and scarf creators because the scarves will become part of the official volunteer uniform.

To reach our goal of giving a scarf to each of our volunteers, we need to receive 8,000 scarves total. If you love to knit, crochet, or weave, or have always wanted to learn, please help the Host Committee and handcraft a blue and white scarf for a volunteer!
